

Arizona grows enough cotton each year to make more than one pair of jeans for every person in the United States.

