

United States
Department of Agriculture

Farm Service Agency

Roger Dahmer State Executive Director, West Virginia

Roger Dahmer was appointed by the Trump Administration to serve as the state executive director of the West Virginia USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) in February 2018.

Dahmer's roots are from the farming country of Pendleton County, West Virginia, where he currently resides. He graduated from West Virginia University with a bachelor's degree in agriculture.

He began his career with FSA's predecessor agency, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) in 1986 as a county operations trainee. Over the next 32 years, he served as a county executive director in several county offices. Prior to his 2018 appointment, he served as the county executive director in the Pendleton County FSA office for 20 years.

Dahmer is a member of the West Virginia Farm Bureau. He is involved with his church in various roles including assistant teacher for adult Sunday school. He coached youth league soccer for 19 seasons and was the assistant soccer coach at the local high school for five seasons. He has served the local Boy Scout troop in various leadership capacities since 2001.

Dahmer and his wife, Pamela, have two sons and a daughter, along with a grandson and two granddaughters.