

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT HEIR PROPERTY

What is “Heir Property?”

- Heir property refers to land that has been passed down informally from generation-to-generation. In most cases, it involves landowners who died without a will.
- Heirs’ property is land owned “in common” by all of the heirs, regardless of whether they live on the land, pay the taxes, or have ever set foot on the land.

Things you should know

- When a landowner dies without a will, the state decides who inherits the land. Overtime, when land is passed down through several generations without a will, distant relatives who do not know each other could be co-owners of the same property.
- Heir property is the leading cause of Black involuntary land loss. According to the Census Bureau, 80 percent of land owned by Blacks has been lost since 1910 due to heir property.

Common Problems

- Decisions regarding use of the land, such as harvesting timber or leasing for agricultural purposes, must be agreed upon by everyone entitled to the land.
- Some owners may want to sell the land, while others want to live on it or farm it.
- Some will pay their share of taxes and maintenance, while others will not.
- It is hard to get loans, grants, and Government assistance based on property ownership because there is no clear title.
- Lack of clear title also means that the property is less marketable for sale or lease.
- One owner could force a court-ordered sale of the entire property so that all of the descendants can “cash out.”
- Some owners are unable to receive a home loan to complete badly needed home repairs.

What you should do

- Try to work out family disagreements before they become legal battles. Get a will and encourage other heirs to make a will to prevent more people from becoming heir owners.
- Make a family tree to identify every heir. Maintain a list of all of the heirs with their current addresses. Create a plan to take care of the property. You may need to have meetings once or twice a year.
