2 Policy

A LAPC Quarterly Review Requirements

LAPC’s shall conduct random quarterly reviews of cardholder’s transactions to ensure sufficient management and oversight, including a broad look at current cardholder activity.

Reviews should consist of a combined electronic review of transaction information in US Bank Access Online (AXOL), running an AXOL Transaction Detail report, and a physical review of the actual documentation (either the original documents or scanned/FAXed copies). The LAPC’s shall request a random sampling of no less than ten transactions for physical review from each cardholder being reviewed that quarter. More physical reviews may be requested if the LAPC feels that 10 samples will not be enough to conduct a thorough review of the cardholder’s activity.

This random physical review must include a minimum of 50 percent convenience check transactions, if applicable. LAPC's should prioritize their electronic and physical sampling requests:

- on questionable transactions that may appear on the Transaction Detail reports
- on convenience check transactions; and finally, routine card transactions.

Examples: Cardholder A wrote six convenience checks for the first quarter review period and there are no questionable transactions on the report. The LAPC will request a minimum of ten samples for physical review with at least five of those samples being convenience check documentation. Cardholder B wrote two convenience checks for the same review period and The LAPC is questioning three transactions on the report. The LAPC will request a minimum of ten samples for physical review that will include the three questionable transactions, two convenience check samples, and then random card transactions. The LAPC may request more than ten physical samples to adequately review the cardholder's transactions for the time period.

LAPC's will review a minimum of 25 percent of their cardholders each quarter. The LAPC shall focus on transactions that appear questionable, if applicable, on his or her reports for the quarter. LAPC's are still required to review each cardholder they manage over the course of the FY at least one time.

Note: This means that the 25 percent of cardholder accounts reviewed each quarter must vary from quarter to quarter until 100 percent of all cardholder accounts for each LAPC are reviewed at least once by the end of FY 2017. This may coincide with any questionable transaction reviews or may be in addition to them.

The purpose of the reviews is to take a broad look at the cardholder's activities and a detailed look at specific transactions, including randomly selected transactions and specifically questionable transactions.

Using the Quarterly Review Checklist (Exhibit 1), LAPC's shall report the results of their reviews to their APC by the end of the second month following the close of each quarter. No data elements on Exhibit 1 shall be altered or removed. LAPC's will e-mail only the completed Exhibit 1 to the APC by the following required dates. LAPC's shall retain a copy of Exhibit 1 along with any supporting physical documentation at their office and follow standard guidelines for record keeping and disposal of this data.
